Subject: Glenn-Colusa Irrigation District Marks Centennial

Dear Landowners, Water Users and Other Interested Parties:

Today, Friday, February 21, 2020, marks the 100-year anniversary of the establishment of the Glenn-Colusa Irrigation District! Glenn-Colusa Irrigation District (GCID/District) is one of the earliest and largest water rights holders on the Sacramento River, with the original water rights posting made by Will S. Green in 1883. A number of private companies attempted to complete the system and provide irrigation for several decades, until the formation of Glenn-Colusa Irrigation District in February of 1920. The first irrigation water deliveries actually took place on February 13, 1920, a week before the official formation of the District, because it was an unusually dry season that made it necessary for farmers to begin earlier irrigation of their crops. Now, 100 years later, we are again experiencing a very dry winter and are starting irrigation deliveries in February.

GCID is excited to celebrate its centennial this year and is taking this opportunity to remind landowners, water users, and the communities that are served, of the District's long-standing history of benefitting the region economically while serving lands and environment sustainably.

GCID's dedication to the region has meant more than just simply delivering water for 100 years; it is also the largest water district in the Sacramento Valley with a history of serving the agricultural community, while maintaining critical wildlife habitat.

As part of our centennial celebration, GCID has launched an Instagram page (<https://www.instagram.com/glenncolusairrigationdistrict/>) where notable historical facts and photos will be showcased throughout 2020. These historical facts and photos will also appear on GCID's Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/GlennColusaID/>).

GCID continually evaluates its operations and is focused on effectively managing and delivering water through an ever-improving delivery system and responsible policies. We thank you for your continued support and partnership and look forward to serving the region for another century and beyond.

Sincerely,

Thaddeus Bettner
General Manager
